Dear Friends

What does October bring? In Zimbabwe, and even more in the Congo, they used to call it Suicide month because it was so hot. Here, however, the real heat hits us later. Then, when studying it was said that if you hadn't started swotting when the Jacarandas came into bloom it was probably too late! I really hope that is not the case and wish all those about to write important exams the best of luck.

Sitting on the Stoep

September's past, spring is here, our 'darling buds of May' come in September and October and the flowers and birds and bees all know about it.

Kipling wrote 'The Song of the Banjo' in 1894. The first verse sets the poem:

"You couldn't pack a Broadwood half a mile —
You mustn't leave a fiddle in the damp —
You couldn't raft an organ up the Nile,
And play it in an Equatorial swamp.
I travel with the cooking pots and pails —
I'm sandwiched 'tween the coffee and the pork —

And when the dusty column checks and tails, You should hear me spur the rearguard to a walk!"

The Banjo is the "I" so the banjo is stuffed among pots, pans and food when the army is on the move.

So, let's talk about coincidence.

Now in the first place we have a lovely Broadwood piano, a boudoir grand, 'stuffed' into our lounge! That is also an interesting story. We had just moved countries and we had had to leave our piano behind. It had gone up to 'Rhodesia' on an ox-wagon and it just couldn't face another trip and I desperately wanted a piano to replace it. We didn't have much money so my wife was sent off to an auction. Imagine our excitement and joy when she came home with the Broadwood piano she bought for 75. It has been with us ever since and is certainly worth a lot more than R150! But I digress – as usual.

Secondly my Dad had a fiddle which he used to bring out when I was at the piano and we would play together.

Next we have an organ — sadly in the garage as there is no more space in our small retirement home — brought out from time to time to play as accompaniment for our group of 'sixty something' singers when we have a concert where there is no piano.

And then, I have a banjo ukulele which I also strum from time to time – not so often now that those arthritic fingers are getting stiff – but as the poem also says

"Plunka-lunka-lunka-lunk".

My ukulele is an autographed 'George Formby' (does anyone remember him?) banjo uke. I grew up just in time to see George Formby play and sing in a couple of 40s movies – the first movies I ever saw. One was called 'Come on George' I think? The black and white movies were simply vehicles for the Lancashire lad with a toothy grin to sing and play his ukulele.

My first ukulele I bought in Grahamstown for 6-10-0 in my first year at university with earnings from playing the piano for a local dance band. It travelled with me everywhere and formed the basis for musical revelry at the seaside, at sailing regattas and anywhere where there was a party with a couple of beers on tap! It got sat on, dented but never broken until years later it disappeared during one of our moves. After much searching, even all over the world when we travelled, I eventually found the real McCoy at an auction (another one) in Pretoria. I don't think anyone else around could play it so my bid was successful!

When I started writing to you I wasn't sure where it would end but it may have some interest in a 'long ago' sort of fashion. And maybe it is quite a coincidence how over a hundred years after Kipling penned his poem there is still a home which matched the opening lines so well continue on page 6 with a Broadwood piano, an organ and a banjo and even someone in the family who played the fiddle. Otherwise we are quite normal?

Birds, Beasties, Trees, Updates and Important Things

Did you know? by Wim Spronk

Flamingoes can swim and "Upend" themselves just like ducks!

Ducks and Geese have oil glands on their backs which they use to regularly oil their feathers. Diving birds like Cormorants and Darters do not have these glands nor do they want them.

To catch their prey under water at great speed dry feathers would slow them down. They dry their feathers by spreading their wings and "drip dry" or "blow dry" in the wind.

Nature's True Colours

Get your entries in quickly and maybe you can win the prize. In the meanwhile Marianna (aged 10) has won this month. Well done!

Crackerjack

"With my 'Tinka-tinka-tinka-tinka-tink!' [What d'ye lack, my noble masters! What d'ye lack?]

So I draw the world together link by link: Yea from Delos up to Limerick and back! Last verse of Kipling's "Song of the Banjo" 1894

This at the time of Empire and British soldiers on the move across the world.

But music still lives on and thoughts of home will still persist; even if some things change many things don't – melodies, gardens and nature are all still here.

I know we are very lucky!

RE-LAUNCH OUR BEAUTIFUL ESTATES

It still never fails to amaze me why we do not have a higher demand for property in these areas. Having lived here for over 28 years now, I feel blessed every day for living in this wonderful lifestyle, yet buyers still purchase in the surrounding suburbs rather than in these Estates. Our prices are low and very competitive and we do not always manage to convince the buyers to come into the Estates.

Our property prices have remained fairly static over the past few years and supply and demand are still in favour of the buyer. With Steyn City and Helderfontein establishing themselves, I think that this is a perfect time to try and re-market these areas. Being established and having strong entrenched communities surely has merit, not to mention value for money.

In my opinion, the communities together with the HOA's should look at re-launching our suburbs as desirable areas to reside in. I would appreciate any comments or contributions you have to work together to achieve a more prestigious image in the marketplace.

To what extent does the "VOETSTOOTS" CLAUSE protect the seller

Based on the "Voetstoots" clause within an agreement of sale for immovable property, the seller's protection is not as "absolute" as some would think. The duty to inform prospective purchasers about all latent defects (which are hidden) in the property still rests on the seller. Should the Seller neglect to inform the Purchaser of such defects (which the Seller knew about) it could cost them in the long run.

Examples of latent defects are rising damp, structural weakness of the roof timbers or an incorrectly installed geyser. Some more examples of latent defects include damaged pipes in walls, leaking roofs (except where stain marks make the leak obvious) and defects such as dampness behind a cabinet. These are not things prospective purchasers will see at first glance.

As per a recent ruling by the Supreme Court of Appeal in Banda & Fynn vs Van der Spuy (781/2011) [2013] ZASCA 23 (22 March 2013), the sellers had to fork out a lot of money due to withholding crucial information to the purchasers.

In the above mentioned case the sellers failed to inform the purchasers about the true extent of the damage to the property's roof. The sellers were aware of the fact that the roof leaked and had some repairs done to it to try and fix the problem. On closer inspection by specialists it was found that the cause of the leaks were twofold. Firstly, the wooden roof poles were inadequate to properly support the weight of the thatch roof and resulted in the gradual sagging of the roof. Secondly, the pitch of the property's thatch roof was only 35 degrees and not 45 degrees as it should be, which would have at least ensured that rain water would run off the roof. The specialists testified that due to the pitch of the roof being 35 degrees, water ran into the roof and caused the thatch to rot more quickly. It was found that the initial repairs were therefore not sufficient to stop the roof from leaking in the future. The purchasers only discovered this after registration of the property and the sellers had to fork out to replace the roof, as the problem could not be permanently solved by doing repairs to it. Even though the sellers were not aware of the bigger problem, namely the incorrect pitch of the roof, they were still held liable because they were aware that the repairs which they had done were not adequate.

Patent defects on the other hand, are the purchaser's responsibility. A patent defect is something that would be apparent to the purchaser on first glance of the property. Prospective purchasers cannot think that once they take occupation of the property that the sellers will be held liable for any problems relating to the property. An example of a patent defect will be a broken cupboard, it is the prospective purchaser's duty to ask the sellers about it and get all guarantees for the repair of same in writing from the sellers.

From the above it is clear that mutual responsibility rests on both sellers and purchasers regarding defects in a property. Sellers should be honest and not withhold any information relating to latent defects and purchasers should also be vigilant, when viewing a property, in order to pick up on any patent defects. A suggestion posed to sellers is to rather negotiate a lower purchase price due to defects in a property, and to disclose them to the purchaser.

The 3 Principles of Interior Design

Account for function, mood and personality in any decorating project with these pointers.

A beautifully decorated interior not only functions well but it creates a mood or a feeling and shows off the personality of the family that lives there. It's attention to these three important ingredients function, mood and personality — that ensures decorating success.

Before painting and rearranging, spend some time thinking about your family and how you live. Look through magazines for inspiration and pull out ideas or rooms that appeal to you. Gather things from around the house that make you feel good and study them carefully for colour cues and perhaps a clue to the mood you're looking for in your home. This is the beginning of a well-planned and decorated living area.

As for the rest, let's start with function.

Function

Decorating is more than just eye appeal — it's making a room really work for you. Here's how to do it, element by element:

- The focal point: Sometimes rooms have natural focal points (places the eyes travel to immediately upon entering a room) — a fireplace, a bay window with a view, maybe even a built-in bookcase. If the room doesn't have a natural focal point, create one with a dynamic piece of art or a colourful area rug.
- The furniture: Determine whether the furniture satisfies the functions you've planned for the room. If a piece isn't working or if it's too large or too small for the size of the room, get rid of it or trade it for something else around the house that may be more appropriate.
- The lighting: Lighting should be selected for the functions of the room as well as for visual appeal. Every task will require either direct lighting from a lamp or indirect lights that simply brighten the room for conversation or TV-watching. Accent lighting floor spots, track lighting or recessed spotlights enhance texture, colour and room details.
- The furniture arrangement: Draw your room on graph paper. Measure and mark electrical outlets and switches, windows and doors. Measure your furniture furniture pieces are directed toward the focal point. keeping the major traffic patterns open. Fill in with pieces you'd like to have that may or may not be available now. Be sure to balance high and low pieces as well as heavy and light ones around the room.

Mood

The mood or feeling of a room is created by your choice of colours, the style of furnishings, the amount of texture and pattern you choose and your accessories. Since there's so much to think about when creating a mood, establishing a theme through the selection of an inspiration piece can make this portion of a decorating project much more fun and interesting. Here are the factors you need to address when setting a mood:

- The inspiration piece: The easiest way by far to decorate is to start with some source of inspiration. A decorative pillow, a favourite scarf and even a magazine photo are good places to begin. Select your inspiration piece wisely, and be sure it makes you feel good when you look at it. It's the basis for selecting your theme, colours, patterns and textures.
- Theme: Analyse your inspiration piece and develop a theme name for it. For instance, a needlepoint pillow with a botanical design on a black background may inspire a title like "formal botanical garden." Be and place it in your floor plan. Generally, the main descriptive with your theme name and all sorts of supporting ideas will come to mind. Botanical prints, striped walls, greens and floral colours, formal fabrics and furniture, dark woods and black accents all fit this particular theme.

- Colour cues: Colour should always support the theme.
 Many times, the colours that are most appropriate are found in the patterns and design of your inspiration piece. Generally, it's best to choose three colours in a room: a dominant colour, used for walls, carpeting and fabric backgrounds; a secondary colour, found throughout the room in fabrics and accessories; and an accent colour, used sparingly to give energy and excitement to the room.
- Patterns: Stripes, checks, florals and plaids are just a few of the patterns to consider as you continue supporting your theme. It's all right to mix patterns as long as you do three things:
 - 1. Keep the background colour the same.
 - 2. Make sure all patterns share the same colours.
 - 3. Vary the scale or sizes of the patterns.
- Texture: Too many smooth, shiny objects or too much nubby, rustic texture becomes tiresome. Use variety to keep the room interesting. Even a pattern can be used as texture. Many prints look dimensional and therefore add depth to a decorating scheme.

 Furniture: Aside from being functional, your furniture plays an important role in supporting your theme.
 Some pieces may function well but their style or colour may stick out like a sore thumb. Try to salvage it with slipcovers, tablecloths or paint. If it's a lost cause, remove it from the room.

Personality

Here's your chance to put your personal stamp on a well-planned room. Here are some strategies:

- Accessorising: Pictures, vases, pillows and area rugs are all integral parts of a great decorating plan. Generally, they should support your theme, but allow more flexibility here; an antique picture frame could add wonderful variety to a contemporary room. Accessories are located on walls, mantels, furniture, tabletops and floors; they can be paintings and photos or pillows.
- Whimsy: This is optional in your decorating scheme, but it can counteract any sterile quality that may have been created by strictly following all the quidelines.
- The unexpected: Interest doesn't have to be whimsical; it can simply be something unexpected in a room, like a brightly-painted ceiling.

Update Tired Old Furniture

Update a tired old chest of drawers using a lick of paint and a personal photograph

You will need:

- Old cabinet
- 100 grit sandpaper and wood filler if necessary
- Plascon paint
- A personal photograph printed to size on 80 gsm paper
- Modge Podge
- Sponge roller
- Craft knife
- Handles (we used copper pipe saddle brackets)

Here's How:

Step 1:Measure the front of the cabinet and add 2cm to the height and width. Have a personal photograph enlarged and printed. Remember to take in a sheet of 80 gsm paper for them to print it on.

Step 2: Sand the cabinet to remove any rough patches. The drawers in particular need to be very smooth, since the applied print will reveal any imperfections underneath.

Step 3: If there are chips or scratches in the wood you would like to fix, now's the time! Apply the wood filler according to the manufacturer's instructions and make sure that it has dried completely before sanding it lightly.

Step 4: Paint the cabinet in the colour of your choice. We applied two coats, then sanded the edges slightly to achieve a vintage look. There's no need to paint the drawers since you'll be applying the print over them.

Step 5: Using the roller, apply a layer of Modge Podge to the drawers. Make sure that you clean any excess from the sides so the print doesn't stick to anything except the drawers.

Step 6: Apply the print and allow to dry before you start cutting the paper away with the craft knife. Ensure that you cut the paper slowly and carefully – it's wet, so it can tear quite easily. Don't cut the paper directly on the edge of the drawer since the overlap will allow you to finish off the edges neatly.

Step 7: Apply 2 coats of Modge Podge over the paper, allowing the first layer to dry completely before applying the final one. This will create a varnish over the paper to protect it.

Halloween

Saturday, 31st October 2015

W000000, it is that time of the year again when the ghosts and ghouls, witches and werewolves, zombies and freaks are out wandering the streets of Dainfern! It's Halloween time once again! Kids, you are summoned to the Pavilion from 3pm on Saturday, 31 October 2015 to get your most chilling and squeamish faces on for the trick or treating to happen later that night!

We have three face painters who are raring to go to get you in the zone! And while you are waiting for your turn or have finished being transformed, we will have a jumping castle and disco to keep you entertained all afternoon, as well as a table adorned out with the best Halloween candy in the world!

There will be accolades for the "Best Dressed" boys and girls (top three) which will be given out at 18h00. Then you will be decreed to hit the streets and go trick or treating around the Estate to "scare" up as much candy as you possibly can.

Residents – if you want to be involved in the trick or treating, dress up your home in its most scariest garb, haul out the scariest costumes you can find, and get ready to welcome all the ghosts, ghouls, zombies and witches to your home!

Just remember that there are rules in place to protect everyone so please make sure you know them and adhere to them as well:-

- 1. Only children aged 13 years and younger may take part in the
- 2. Trick or treating will take place from 18h00 to 20h00 on Saturday, 31 October 2015 only;
- 3. All trick and treaters need to be accompanied by an adult;
- 4. There are some residents who don't want to take part in the Halloween festivities, so if their front light is not on and there are no Halloween decorations at the entrance to the house, move on to the next one:
- 5. Please be considerate to other residents and visitors on the Estate while trick or treating:
- 6. Stay on the golf cart paths and not on the roads for your own safety and watch out for cars!

Residents who don't want to be involved, just switch off all your front lights and don't dress up your homes and the kids will know to move onto the next home.

- Half or Full day options
- · Small classes, stimulating environment

Tennis Update

Armstrong Tennis Academy (Pty) Ltd • Duane Armstrong
082 456 5441 Professional Tennis Coaching from Beginners
to Top National Players

Starting to Compete

When is the right age for kids to start competing and playing TSA Tournaments? That is a very frequently asked question. There are so many variables and a parent must be careful that the timing is correct. There are many different ways to raise kids and all their personalities are different, and there is no manual to follow and we all do our best and all our decisions are for the correct reasons.

Many tennis professionals have very different opinions about when kids should start competing and at what level. Some will start them when they able to play from the baseline and can serve regardless of age. Others will start them at a later age, say 10 or 12 years and older when the kid is a well-rounded player already.

My seven almost eight year old is begging me to enter him into TSA tournament. It makes me as a tennis professional so proud that my own son wants to compete. Taking my students to tournament and my son being part of the squad is truly amazing. However I am very nervous at the same time, what if he is too young or will lose badly against a strong experienced 10 year old? Then one starts doubting and you almost want to back pedal.

I have never pushed my kids to train or play tennis and Connor is asking me every day to train him. He is also a good loser which is important, but may I say he doesn't like losing at the same time. It's very important that he loves playing and enjoys playing points. All Connor wants to do is play points no matter against who and what age. He is ready for his first tournament. I had him play his first training match a few days ago. When we drove home he said that he is ready to play but he thinks he must practice his serves a little more. It was so cute of him to recognize his weaker area and what he needs to do to fix it.

All kids are different and are mentally ready at different ages and we as parents can't force them. Forcing a kid to compete could result in them not wanting to play or kill their love for the game. If a kids starts young they can't expect to win and they have a lot to learn. That will teach them sportsmanship and learning how to lose. Hard work will pay off and they will become winners and reap the benefits. It's so easy for us to get involved and get upset when they don't perform, but it's not about us. They are playing because it's fun and they enjoy playing matches. Kids are kids and win or lose its awesome as long as they are having fun. When they are having fun they will perform better anyway. We might not always agree with their performance and that is alright. We can guide and help them and be their pillar of strength when they need one. Your tennis professional will know your kids level and emotional strength and when they are ready to compete.

Enjoy guiding your kids and have lots of fun sitting by their court watching them have fun.

What is Mustard Spinach or Greens?

Mustard spinach is one of the most overlooked, yet delicious, vegetables in the produce section. With beautifully varied colours, succulent stems, and culinary versatility, they make a great addition to the kitchen. They also happen to be extremely nutritious, packing huge amounts of vitamins and minerals into relatively few calories.

Eating mustards regularly will diversify your nutrient intake, give you more energy, and add a unique splash of colour to almost any dish you cook.

Mustard Spinach Nutrition and Health

One cup of mustard spinach yields over 500% the daily value of vitamin K, 85% of your daily vitamin A, 60% of vitamin C, and high levels of folates, manganese, dietary fibre, calcium, and a bit of protein to boot. That's a whole lot of nutrition for just 20 calories worth of food!

The high vitamin K content of mustard spinach has strong anti-inflammatory properties that improve cardiovascular health. Excessive inflammation in the cardiovascular system has been directly linked to heart disease, so the high vitamin K content makes mustard spinach a hearthealthy food. Also, the dietary fibre in mustards has been shown to reduce overall cholesterol levels in those with pre-existing high cholesterol, compounding its hearthealthy qualities.

Mustard spinach also has extremely high levels of anti-oxidants. Vitamins A, C, E, as well as the mineral manganese, all function as anti-oxidants in the body.

Anti-oxidants are proven cancer fighters, keeping free radicals and oxidised cells from damaging neighbouring cells.

Mustard Spinach and Garlic

From Rebecca Wood's Be Nourished

The energetic properties of mustard spinach, onions and garlic help cut congestion in our intercellular fluids.

Sautéing further enhances this medicinal action. To ease snoring and excess mucus formation, avoid foods that contribute to the problem and enjoy warming dishes, like this recipe, that counter mucus formation.

- 1 tablespoon sesame oil or ghee
- 1 clove garlic
- 1 small onion
- 1 bunch mustard spinach, chopped Salt or soy sauce to taste

In a wok or sauté pan, warm the oil or ghee and over medium heat sauté the garlic and onion until softened. Add the mustard spinach and sauté for about 3 minutes or until it is wilted. Season with salt or soy sauce, cover, reduce heat and cook for 2 minutes more or until mustard spinach is tender but the colour is still vivid. Serve hot.

Makes 4 servings.

Keep the Planet Green

Drive South Africa has put together a list of ways we can help keep the planet green.

At Home

- 1. Turn off unneeded lights, even when only vacating the room for a short period of time.
- 2. When using an oven, minimize the times you open the oven door as it each time the door is opened, it reduces the oven temperature by 25 to 30 percent.
- 3. Clean the lint filter in your dryer after every load so that it uses less energy.
- Unplug infrequently used appliances.
- 5. Make use a microwave oven whenever possible, instead of a conventional oven or stove.
- Wash clothes with warm or cold water instead of hot.
- 7. Turn off lights, computers and other appliances when they are not in use.
- Only use electric appliances when you need to use

- 9. Use compact fluorescent light or LED bulbs to save on money as well as energy.
- 10. Insulate your home as best as you can.
- 11. Plant trees to shade your home.
- 12. Shade outside air conditioning units by trees or other
- 13. Use cold water instead of warm or hot water whenever possible.
- 14. Connect your outdoor lights to a timer.
- 15. Eliminate mercury from your home by purchasing items without mercury, and dispose of items containing mercury at an appropriate drop-off facility when necessary (e.g. old thermometers)
- 16. Learn about alternatives to household cleaning items that do not use hazardous and toxic chemicals.
- 17. If you have an older home, have paint in your home tested for lead.
 - If you have lead-based paint, be sure to cover the paint with wall paper or other such material instead of sanding it or burning it off.
- 18. Use traps instead of rat/mouse poisons and insect
- 19. Use cedar chips or aromatic herbs instead of mothballs.
- 20. Avoid using leaf blowers and other dust-producing
- 21. Use an electric lawnmower instead of a gas-powered
- 22. Leave grass clippings on the yard, they decompose and return nutrients to the soil.
- 23. Use recycled wood chips as mulch to keep weeds down, retain moisture and prevent erosion.
- 24. Use only the required amount of fertiliser.
- 25. Minimise pesticide use.
- 26. Create a wildlife habitat in your yard.
- 27. Water grass early in the morning.
- 28. Rent or borrow items like ladders, chain saws, party decorations and others that are rarely used.
- 29. Take actions that use non hazardous components to ward off pests (e.g. plant marigolds in the garden instead of using pesticide)
- 30. Check and fix any water leaks.

By Olivia Denny (Landscaper for the DNA)

The Dainfern Nature Association recently carried out a huge clean up in Saw Grass including cutting and burning of the reeds. The cleaning of weeds and invasive plants has also been completed.

Patches of uneven path has had sand spread over the bad spots and the south west path will have gravel spread over it once it arrives. The barge raft has been repaired; and should be back in Saw Grass by the beginning of October, in time for keeping the reeds under control in the dams.

The baby Moorhens are flourishing, and are the cutest little chicks, they look like little balls of black fluff. We appeal to residents to respect the Nature Areas and to keep dogs on leashes so our wild life can flourish.

Reeds have been sprayed, but they are coming up fast and furious again. Huge amounts of mud are coming from developments upstream in the Fourways Area and the stand above Saw Grass. This unfortunately results in our dams becoming silted. However we are happy to report that Grey Herons have been sighted on a number of occasions in the area.

Poplar Marsh flower beds have needed some attention, so the plants have been divided up and the beds have been restored. Clean ups along the paths have been completed, and all is back to normal again. Wonderful to see The Green Parrots frequently visiting this area, the lovely chatter and song of the parrots can often be heard when walking along the wooded path. How fortunate we are!

Willow Stream to the 9th Fairway is still on the cards to sort out, but in the meantime our team has weeded the grassland area along the 9th fairway, which had weeds and cactus. Whilst our team were in the area at the 9th T, we planted a lovely Aloe and Grass Garden which really enhances, what was an ugly bare patch?

The Liverage Bank which really took strain with no water and the winter frost has recovered well with the new water connection. We have replanted the beds in places, which are flourishing and are looking good. Ferns were supplied by Beatrice and have been planted in the bare areas. Thank you, Beatrice. Dead reeds were also cleaned out along the bank, with sensitivity to our wild life.

The Combretum Trail is looking fine. Reeds which were washed away last summer season have been replanted along the bank and are doing well. The Bamboo Reeds that were cut on the bank in winter are coming back fast and furious and have been sprayed to control them. Great to see lots of spoor from the Monitor Lizards within this area.

Rocky Ridge, is fine, however rubbish is repeatedly left at the deck, especially after a weekend, and sadly our donated plaque sign has been burnt. We appeal to all who enjoy using this peaceful spot to bin their rubbish.

The Ridge has been cleaned and the invasive Kikuyu Grass has been sprayed. This will have to be sprayed again, before we can remove the dead Kikuyu and replant with natural grass in the coming months.

The 6th Dam, Kiggelaria Africana trees and a Dombeya Tree have been planted to attract butterflies and birds. The Rameron Pigeon, Heuglin's Robins, Boubou shrikes, and red-winged starlings, white-eye and mouse birds, are attracted to the oil-rich aril on the seeds, so hopefully in the coming years, they will attract these birds.

On Olive Walk , $2 \times$ Combretum's and $3 \times$ Buddleja's have been planted in open spaces. Two wild hares have made their burrow in a secluded place along the bank, and are often visible in the early evenings. Owls can be seen flying around Olive Walk and in the Steyn City property at dusk and the hues of the Grasslands in the area are just too magnificent. How lucky we are to live in this environment!

In Butterfly Walk, plants have been divided and dead trees have been replaced. The lawns have been scarified and we are just waiting for some lawn dressing and compost. Once this arrives the beds will be composted and the lawn dressing will be spread.

The 16th Bank is coming along really well. We are currently cleaning up and planting along this area.

The new bed along Buffalo Thorn is coming along slowly, but we are not sure how it will survive heavy rains. We can only wait and see. However the shape of the bed along the bank really enhances the river frontage and it will be lovely once completed. We would like to thank Aret for her time and effort in this area.

Trent Weir has had dead trees replaced with a good clean up and is looking good again.

Extensive reed cutting has occurred in Trent Dam and there is lots of activity around the dam with birds and Monitor Lizards. What is of concern is the silting up of the Dam with sand from further up stream with the new developments and new highway, as this little stream does take the brunt of that. Momentarily, this is fine, we are aware and Dainfern will need to keep a watch on this as time goes by to see how it all holds.

The new Wetland at River Exit has been started, and an artificial "Riverbank" will be created to attract White fronted Bee-Eaters and European Bee Eaters. It will be well worth the try, by creating the ideal location for these lovely birds, which Wim seems to think will work in time. Thank you Wim for your input. We will do our best to create this habitat to encourage these beautiful birds into Dainfern and surrounding areas.

European Bee-eaters are characterised by richly coloured plumage, slender bodies, and usually elongated central tail feathers. All have long downturned bills and pointed wings, which give them a swallow-like appearance when seen from afar. There are 26 different species of bee-eaters.

As the name suggests, bee-eaters predominantly eat flying insects, especially bees and wasps, which are caught in the air by sallies from an open perch.

While they pursue any type of flying insect, honey bees predominate in their diet. Hymenoptera (ants, bees and wasps) comprise from 20% to 96% of all insects eaten, with honey bees comprising approximately one-third of the Hymenoptera.

Before eating its meal, a bee-eater removes the stinger by repeatedly hitting and rubbing the insect on a hard surface. During this process, pressure is applied to the insect thereby extracting most of the venom. Notably, the birds only catch prey that are on the wing and ignore flying insects once they land.

Bee-eaters are gregarious. They form colonies by nesting in burrows tunnelled into the side of sandy banks, such as those that have collapsed on the edges of rivers. Their eggs are white and they generally produce 2–9 eggs per clutch (depending on species). As they live in colonies, large numbers of these holes are often seen together, white streaks from their accumulated droppings accentuating the entrances to the nests. Most of the species in the family are monogamous, and both parents care for the young, sometimes with the assistance of other birds in the colony, a behaviour considered unusual for birds.

What an enormous amount of work Olivia and Sean and teams do on this Estate to keep the large Nature Areas looking good. I would like to thank them very much, and also to Aret Du Preez who has started to beautify the riverbanks in Riverwood.

I would also like to appeal to cyclists to please respect the gravel paths in Nature Areas that are designated for walkers. They are important low impact areas where wildlife can flourish. The gravel surface is disrupted and needs endless raking due to the cyclists who race these paths.

The Dainfern Nature Association are able to continue enhancing the Estate with proceeds from our magazine. In Focus. A big thank you to all our advertisers, and to Colleen the Editor.

How to attract birds to your garden

Ref. www.lifeisagarden.co.za

Now is an excellent time to provide nesting, resting, feeding and breeding sites for birds in your garden.

Bird-friendly plants

The best feeding programme for birds is to plant shrubs and trees which offer nature's menu. Aloes, watsonias. lion's ear (Leonotis spp.), red-hot pokers (spp.) and wachendorfias will attract nectar feeding birds such as the sunbird. Seed eating birds are attracted to the seed heads of grasses and grains. Plant patches of mixed bird seed and you'll be fascinated to see the response from local birds. Seed eaters also thrive on the seeds of ordinary daisies (such as the euryops daisy). Leave the dried out dead heads of daisies for as long as you can to give the birds time to take most of the seed at the end of summer. To attract fruit eating birds, such as the loeries, plant fruit producing plants. Try the tree fuchsia (Halleria lucida). dune crow-berry (Rhus crenata) or white stinkwood (Celtis africana). Local weavers and sparrows, will flock to your garden if you install a nesting box, bird feeder or bird bath in your garden. This is a basic guide on how to attract birds to your garden:

Roosting sites

Established trees will naturally provide a source of shelter and roosting spots for many birds and a garden which is well planted with indigenous trees will attract numerous birds throughout the year. Good roosting sites are provided by the Henkel's yellowwood (Podocarpus henkelii), fever tree (Acacia xanthophloea), karee (Searsia lancea), sweet thorn (Acacia karroo) or buffalo thorn (Ziziphus mucronata. Creepers such as the black-eyed Susan (Thunbergia elata) can be draped around the branches of trees to provide a secluded nesting site for robins or flycatchers. Grasses, including reeds and bulrushes are valuable suppliers of nesting material to weavers who suspend their nests from trees.

Mulch and compost

Leave fallen leaves and logs in the garden as these will provide micro-habitat for various insects, grubs and worms, which will in turn attract insect feeders such as, olive thrushes and African hoopoes. These birds love the dense undergrowth of gardens where they turn over leaves and debris in search of grubs. Dead logs and tree trunks make ideal nesting spots for birds such as barbets and woodpeckers.

Water for birds

Every garden should have a bird bath in the quieter part of the garden preferably near thick foliage and established trees, so that the birds can perch nearby and not feel exposed. Avoid placing a bird bath directly underneath tree branches, as falling leaves and bird droppings may soil the water. Keep the bird bath topped up over winter, as many birds will frequently visit to drink and bath. Bird baths come in various shapes and sizes, but most importantly, they should be anchored securely so that they don't topple over.

Feed the birds

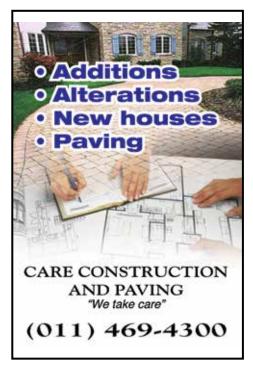

Feeding stations for garden birds come in a range of shapes and sizes. A common variety is the seed-dispersing tube type feeder whereby you place bird seed on top by removing a cap. A feeding plate attaches to the bottom and this will hold the seeds which are gravity fed. As the birds feed, the seeds will filter down and spread over the plate. These are often equipped with small perches, allowing only small birds such as finches and sparrows to feed, but making it difficult for large seed eaters such as doves and pigeons to perch and feed, which would otherwise rapidly finish off the bird seed.

These feeders can be hung from a tree branch. Other bird feeders include platforms where bread, seed, fruit and suet and can placed. They often have spikes where fruit can be anchored for fruit eating birds. These bird feeders can be placed on top of a sturdy pole or hung from a tree branch. For the really dedicated, consider breeding your own mealworm colony, which will provide a delicious treat for grub feeding birds.

Nesting boxes

Hollowed out logs, available from garden centres, are a favourite with barbets who use them for breeding. Anchor the logs vertically on tree trunks several metres off the ground. Traditional square or rectangular box nests are also available and can be anchored securely around various parts of the garden.

Bird Walk

An enthusiastic group of birders started out early in the morning to see what spring would bring on this September morning. We kept an eye open for migrants and were not to be disappointed as swifts and swallows were very much in evidence right from the outset. Several White-rumped Swifts were whirling about above the clubhouse, the first signs of this African migrant this spring and later on White-throated Swallow, as well as Greater and Lesser Striped Swallows put in an appearance.

At the river both Yellow-billed and African Black Duck were noted and a Grey-headed Gull flew by. As the morning went by the number of species grew with Grey Go-away-bird, both Crested and Black-collared Barbet, Speckled and Red-faced Mousebird, Southern Fiscal and a number of other regular birds being added to the list of birds seen. At the edge of the estate close to the Steyn City boundary, where the proposed wetland is to be developed, a Black-shouldered Kite put in a surprise appearance and numbers of Helmeted Guineafowl were seen. It is very heartening to see that the guineafowl continue to thrive on the estate as this species has declined in many areas of the country. That we have a good population is a testament to the management of our environment in Dainfern.

Good views of Amethyst Sunbird and a male Pin-tailed Whydah just coming into breeding plumage were obtained at the Sawgrass Dams. These dams in this part of the estate actually provide the best permanent wetland habitat and this can be seen with the number of Red-knobbed Coot and Common Moorhen that breed here. It is also the best area for heron species, with a Purple Heron briefly flying over.

It was also a morning for canaries, and good views of a group of Black-throated Canaries was obtained, with perhaps the best bird of the morning being a Streakyheaded Seedeater (or Canary), which was seen en-route to Sawgrass. This is a seldom encountered species and is quite an attractive songster. The bird perched obligingly in the open for a few minutes and could be observed properly. See a more detailed account of this species in this month's bird of the month section. Once again a few Rose-ringed Parakeets were found in the trees along the Poplar Marsh walk and a pair were in fact seen emerging from a nesting hole in a willow tree, further evidence that the species breeds on the estate.

A satisfactory total of 56 species was tallied up in the end, for all species heard and seen.

A Rose-ringed Parakeet, recently observed on the Poplar Marsh walk

NEXT BIRD WALK:

Our next bird walk will take place on Saturday, 17 October 2015 to meet at the Clubhouse at 6.45am to leave at 7.00am sharp. Please remember to bring along your binoculars and wear walking shoes. All welcome but no dogs please.

Streaky-headed Seedeater

Crithagra gularis

This may not be our most attractive canary in the country but it is certainly one of the finest songsters. The Streaky-headed Seedeater is mostly a brown species, with faint streaking on the upperparts and dark cheek patches.

The species takes its name from the finely streaked crown and prominent white supercilium, which are both very obvious when observing a perched bird. The streaked crown is noticeable in the photo of the bird included with this article.

The Streaky-headed Seedeater (or Streaky-headed Canary as it is sometimes called) is actually a bird of woodland and tree covered hillsides and is very partial to Protea scrub areas. It is known to enter areas with cultivated land and gardens which is no doubt why it is occasionally seen in Dainfern. It will also frequently visit flowering aloes and when these are in flower in the estate in winter and spring you can expect to see this bird around, although it is fairly unobtrusive in nature so it may easily be overlooked.

It has a very attractive song which it utters from a prominent perch. During a recent bird walk in the estate a bird was seen perched in the area near the security office and was first noticed because of its melodious song. Thereafter the diagnostic streaked crown and supercilium, or evebrow, could be observed.

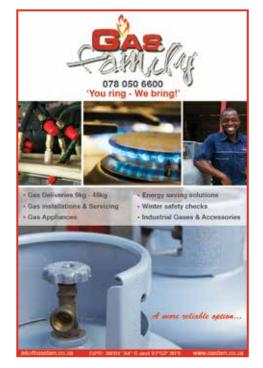

This species eats mainly flowers and buds, seeds, nectar, fruit, and insects, often foraging on the ground or in the foliage of grasses, shrubs and small trees. Small groups of these birds are often seen together at feeding sites and they sometimes form mixed flocks with other birds, particularly other canaries.

It is during September that Streaky-headed Seedeaters start to breed and this can continue until March. The nest is a cup of dead leaves, bark and twigs, lined with seeds and plant down, and is placed in the upright or horizontal fork of a bush or tree. The 2-4 eggs are incubated only by the female for 12-15 days, but both parents will feed the chicks.

This is another superb species to observe on the estate and it is worthwhile to keep an eye open for it.

ARK ANIMAL CENTRE

Ark Animal Centre is one of Johannesburg's leading rehabilitation and re-homing animal shelters specialising in puppies , pregnant dogs and small breeds. They are a non-profit, no-suffer centre that was formed by Tracy Otto, her two daughters and their intense love for dogs. The success of Ark has been due to the hard, endless work, and helping hands from all over SA as well as the all-important team work aspect of working with other welfares and foster-families.

They are a non-profit organisation and are based in the Chartwell area of Johannesburg, but have people all over the country who support their cause. Their survivability is dependent on the support of the public as well as the donations they receive, eg: puppy food, blankets, treats, 3ml syringes etc.
